A New Textbook Every Day
A new school accommodated about 750 pupils, half white and half black, was opened in the Boston system in the fall of 1969. One of its unique features is that the daily newspaper serves for instruction in all sorts of subjects. UPI reporter Michael Widmer tells about it.

"If you use your imagination, there is no end to what you can do with a newspaper," Mel Conroy, a teacher of third, fourth and fifth graders, is quoted as saying. "The idea is to encourage them to read the papers at home and get them thinking about anything that interests them."

For example, in one lesson pupils went through the newspapers comparing grocery prices at different shopping centers. It was a good lesson in arithmetic, Conroy said, and "We saved $1.90 on the week's groceries." The best thing, he continued, "is that they learn more this way. They pick up the basic skills and learn about life as well. The newspaper is ideal for this kind of instruction. It's like a constantly changing textbook."

The teacher went on to say that "the kids have really taken to it. I have to get up half an hour earlier each morning to make sure I read the paper. Otherwise I may not know what they're talking about." So the youngsters get a new textbook every day with an up-to-the-minute outlook on what's going on. Parents can use the same text to good advantage without added expense. — Greenville (S.C.) News.

4 Fireman Die in Blast at Atlanta

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Four firemen were killed when an explosion ripped through a burning downtown restaurant, trapping them in a basement inferno as the floor was blown from under them.

"There were guys in there screaming for help" said a fireman, his face flecked with blood, who was standing at the front of the building when the blast occurred. "We scrambled down in there and got some of them. Some we just couldn't get to."

The four they couldn't rescue were Capt. L. B. Grady, 30, and firemen V. J. Crider, 30, H. Howard Beck, 30, and C. D. Fernandez, 26.

Their bodies were removed early Sunday by their comrades from the wreckage of the gutted three-story structure.

It was the worst loss of life the department has suffered since six Atlanta firemen were killed in 1925.

A department spokesman said a special memorial service will be held for them this week.

Twenty three other fire fighters were injured in the blast Saturday night. Seven of them remain hospitalized, all in satisfactory condition.

The explosion occurred about 45 minutes after billows of smoke from the basement caused the evacuation of the restaurant, which operated 24 hours a day.

Firemen said no flames had reached the ground level of the restaurant when they entered and began drilling through to the basement so they could use cellular hoses to try to smother the fire with foam.

Chief P. O. Williams said the explosion was caused by a back draft, when oxygen was fed into the intense heat and gases which had accumulated and "just turned the fire into a bomb."

Department officials said Sunday, however, that all other possible reasons for the blast would be investigated.

Israeli to Concede No More on Suez

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Israel says it sees no reason to make any more concessions to Egypt for an agreement to reopen the Suez Canal.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Israel is still awaiting Cairo's response to its proposals for reopening the waterway that the Egyptians closed during the 1967 Middle East war.

"I see no reason why we should commit ourselves to further concessions, since the entire balance of concessions, so far, is one of concessions made by Israel," Eban told a radio interviewer Sunday.

"Egypt is not asked to give up anything—not the cease-fire line nor anything under her control. In my opinion, Egypt therefore has an obligation to respond to our proposals."

These proposals are understood to be that Israeli forces will withdraw from the east bank of the canal if Egypt guarantees an end to hostilities and does not send its troops across the waterway into the positions vacated by the Israelis.

Eban said more than the reopening of the canal is at stake. "This is a test, an experimental station for the very feasibility of peace," he declared.

U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers has been pressing Israel and Egypt to reach an agreement on the canal, hoping that it will give a boost to negotiations for a general peace settlement.

Hempstead Scores in 2 Categories

Scrapper Stadium at Nashville had an overflowing crowd Saturday night for the Southwest District Poultry Festival. Chickens were prepared for 3,500 but 4,000 tickets were sold.

The entertainment was outstanding. You would have thought you were at the Hee Haw Show, but all talent was local except Lynn Cooley from Tennessee who was "dead ringer" for Lu Lu. (There was even a doleful looking Basset.)

Contests were held during the day for District Chicken Cookin' Queen and 4-H Barbecue finalists to be sent to the state contest in Hot Springs June 10th, 11th and 12th. Mrs. Mable Sanders, Mrs. Beverly Starr, Mrs. Delta Chalker and Mrs. Janice Deronda Huffman all of Nashville and Mrs. Charlotte Frisby from El Dorado all qualified for state competition. Mrs. Guy Mitchell of El Dorado was chosen as an alternate.

The six 4-H winners were Hershel Bell, Polk County; Vera Nelson, Clark; Debbie Moore, Garland; Becky Murray, Union and Katrina Lewis and Juvonda Williams both from Nevada County. Paula Poindexter from Hempstead County was picked as first alternate and Susie Riley of Ashley County as second alternate.

Pedie Gathright was Master of Ceremonies for the Poultry Princess contest. Selected to go to the state competition were Jane Baldridge of Conway;

Sightseers More Trouble Than Volcano

FORNZAIO, Sicily (AP) — Angry farmers on the slopes of Mt. Etna complained today that the thousands of sightseers watching the eruption were doing more damage than the lava.

Crowds trampled the vineyards and climbed to vantage perches in the fruit trees to see the fiery spectacle.

An 11-year-old, Mario D'Antoni, was bumped off a 25-foot wall while watching the lava stream with his parents at 4 a.m. today. He suffered a skull fracture and internal injuries.

"The sightseers are like a plague of locusts," one farm wife told newsmen. "They are ruining everything, and what they don't trample and destroy they carry off as souvenirs."

The lava still was pouring down the mountain side on the 56th day of Etna's second worst eruption of this century.

For the moment the villages of Fornazzo, Sant'Alfio, Sciarra and Macchia di Giarre appeared in no imminent peril.

Hair-Cut Decision Reversed

by BILL SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court unanimously threw out today the contempt of court conviction of Michael Morrow, 19, of Little Rock, for refusing to obey Circuit Court Judge Russell C. Roberts' order to get a haircut.

Roberts of Conway had sentenced Morrow to 30 days on the county penal farm for declining to get a haircut after the judge ordered him last December to get one.

Morrow had told the judge that he was a musician and that the length of his hair, which came down to near his shoulders, was "more or less a requirement."

The youth, formerly a student at State College of Arkansas, has been subpoenaed to testify in the embezzlement trial of former SCA cashier Robert Pruitt.

Morrow did not appear on time. He explained that he had called the prosecuting attorney's office and told a secretary that he had no transportation. He was told to stand by for instructions, he said.

He waited, but no further instructions were received.

When Morrow did not appear in court, an officer was sent to his home, where he was taken into custody and delivered to the court in Conway. For failing to appear, Roberts imposed on Morrow a fine of $30 and a jail term of 15 days.

The Supreme Court unanimously held that the contempt conviction for failing to appear was valid, but said that sentence of a $30 fine and 24 hours in jail was sufficient and reduced the penalty to the lesser amount.

Morrow already has served the 24 hours in jail. He was released on bond pending his appeal after spending a night in jail last December.

On the haircut issue, the Supreme Court said that contempt of court is a judicial power that should never be exercised "except in those cases where the necessity is plain and unavoidable" and necessary to preserve the authority or dignity of the court.

"The record before us is devoid of any showing that the appearance of the respondent created a plain and unavoidable necessity that he be punished in order to protect the authority of the court," said the Supreme Court opinion by Associate Justice Lyle Brown.

"Nor is there any evidence of an effort to the dignity of the court," Brown wrote. "If his appearance created any disturbance whatsoever, it is not revealed in the record."

Kidnaped Packer Well Treated

By HORACIO FINOLI
ROSARIO, Argentina (AP) — An Anglo-Argentine meat packing executive, freed by guerrilla kidnapers Sunday, says he was treated very well during his week of captivity.

Stanley M.F. Sylvester even stopped to buy a newspaper while riding home in a taxi.

"Please don't ask me any questions, I cannot compromise myself," Sylvester, 58, told newsmen. "They treated me very well."

Sylvester, the honorary British consul in Rosario, was kidnaped by the Marxist People's Revolutionary Army. To ransom him the Swift De La Plata meat packing company, of which he is a director, distributed $62,500 worth of food, blankets and clothing to shantytown poor in Rosario.

The leftists said they kidnaped Sylvester to call attention to the "unimaginable anguish" which they alleged the Swift plant had caused its 6,000 workers and their families here.

After his release, Sylvester hailed a taxi driven by Santiago Mugeta, 47, in downtown Rosario shortly before 8:30 a.m.

"He asked me to stop so he could buy a newspaper," Mugeta said. "After he had the newspaper, he asked me if I knew who he was. I didn't and then he said: 'I am the consul, and they treated me very well.'"

Sylvester was wearing a red pullover sweater and gray slacks. Arriving at his home in the wealthy Fisherton suburb, he was embraced by his wife.

Europe Troop Key Is to Arm Allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird says the U.S. attitude toward negotiating with the Soviet Union on troop withdrawals from Europe must be based on strengthening America's NATO allies.

Laird returned Sunday after a week of discussions with Atlantic alliance leaders in Brussels and Mittenwald, Germany. The talks centered around tentative Soviet interest in negotiating troop cuts in Europe.

Laird said U.S. policy on negotiations is being formulated and will be "shared with the allies, hopefully in July," after being studied by the National Security Council.

"Now that we are entering negotiations, now is the time to give strength to the partnership while the negotiations are going on," Laird told newsmen at Andrews Air Force Base.

Although he declined to elaborate on the U.S. negotiating stance, the defense chief said the Nixon administration lists "four realities" in approaching troop cuts: "manpower, politics, strategy and fiscal considerations."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers leaves Tuesday for the NATO ministerial conference in Lisbon.

Laird and Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, visited Atlantic partners after the Soviet Union responded to a suggestion the Warsaw Pact and NATO alliances discuss mutual troop parings.

Audie Murphy Missing on Charter Plane

ATLANTA (AP) — Audie Murphy, a baby-faced Texan whose heroism as an infantryman earned him 24 decorations during World War II, is missing on a chartered airplane flight.

The twin-engine Aero Commander in which the most-decorated soldier of the second world conflict and four other men left Atlanta Friday morning was last heard from as it passed near Roanoke, Va.

The Federal Aviation Administration said bad weather was reported in the Roanoke area at the time. The pilot, Herman Butler, contacted the FAA's flight service station at Roanoke Friday and indicated he would land there at 11:40 a.m. Nothing more was heard from the craft, the FAA said Sunday.

Murphy, a post-war movie actor whose military decorations included the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest award for valor, was en route to Martinsville, Va., to inspect a plant owned by Modular Properties, Inc., of Atlanta.

Bill Spoon, sales manager for the firm, said the 46-year-old Murphy was considering investing in the company. It specializes in factory-built homes, motels and other structures.

The FAA said a search for the plane began late because the pilot failed to file a flight plan. The flight service station at Roanoke would not necessarily have expected further contact with the plane and thus made no report, the FAA said.

With Murphy were Claude Crosby, president of Modular Management, a subsidiary of Modular Properties; Jack Littleton, representing a group of investors from California; Raymond Fater, a Chattanooga, Tenn., attorney representing Modular Management, and Butler, of Denver, Colo.

Prater, a decorated World War II veteran himself, ran unsuccessfully for Congress in Tennessee in 1962.

Bunker Hill Site of Vet Demonstration

BOSTON (AP) — About 300 antiwar veterans camped out on historic Bunker Hill today as they neared the end of a trek from Concord "to spread the alarm" against the war in Vietnam.

The demonstrators, tracing in reverse the midnight ride Paul Revere made in 1775 to spread the warning that the British were coming, said they would march the final two miles to Boston Common today.

The demonstrators, members of a group called Vietnam Veterans Against the War, dressed in Army fatigues and carried toy weapons for the march, which a spokesman said was held "to spread the alarm that we are all prisoners of this war."

Police had told the veterans they could not remain on Bunker Hill after a 10:30 p.m. curfew, but relented provided the demonstrators remained orderly.

Bunker Hill, where the Colonials held off the British in June 1775, is north of downtown Boston across the Charles River on the Charlestown peninsula.

The demonstrating veterans set out Saturday from Concord, about 20 miles west of Boston, and many Spent Sunday morning in a makeshift jail at Lexington for defying a ban on overnight use of Battle Green, site of the first battle of the American Revolution.

Police in riot gear cleared Battle Green at 3 a.m. Sunday, arresting more than 400 for violation of park rules. About 40 posted bond and the rest were held overnight in a municipal garage.

Two judges held simultaneous special sessions of Concord District Court Sunday, arraigning 341 demonstrators in six hours. The defendants did not contest the park violation charge and were fined $5 each.

The veterans had planned to march into Boston, but court ended so late in the day that they decided to drive instead.

miles west of Martinsville, telephoned the Roanoke Times Friday to report hearing a plane in trouble during a rainstorm. Larry Chambers, a reporter for the weekly Galax Gazette, said he saw a plane "flying like it was a yo-yo string." He said it came down to near treetop level, circled the city once and then headed toward the west.

An airport manager at Hillsville, also in Carroll County, said he heard a plane but could not see it and tried unsuccessfully to raise it by radio.

Their reports did not reach the FAA until Sunday.

An FAA spokesman in Atlanta said he talked with the pilot the night before the flight. Butler, he said, was trying to plan a noninstrument trip to plan a noninstrument trip, using visual flight regulations.

A low pressure area was causing bad weather on the projected flight path, the spokesman said.

Murphy, a Kingston, Tex., native, went to war as a skinny teen-ager and won virtually every decoration his country could bestow, and a battlefield commission.

He became an actor when discharged from the service in 1945 and made more than 40 films, most of them Westerns.

One of his film credits was "To Hell and Back," based on a book that he wrote about his war experiences.

Murphy retained the baby face, soda fountain pompadour and nasal Texas twang he had when he left home to join the Army at age 18.

"I thought it would be an adventure," he once recalled in an interview, "and it was—the first day."

He received his Medal of Honor for killing 240 Germans and stopping a Nazi advance in France.

He was brought to Hollywood by actor James Cagney, who spotted Murphy's picture on the cover of a magazine.

The son of a sharecropper, Murphy had planned to go to Texas A & M to become a veterinarian. He had first wanted to go to West Point. But three war wounds kept him from pursuing the physical to the military academy.

He was happy to become an actor.

"It beats picking cotton," he once told a newsmen. He had been relatively inactive as an actor since the late 1960s. He declared bankruptcy in 1968, saying that a series of losing business deals had left him broke.

Murphy resided with his second wife, Pamela, a former airline hostess, and their two sons, Terry, 18, and "Skipper," 16, in North Hollywood, Calif.

His first marriage to actress Wanda Hendrix, ended in divorce.

Rogers Defied by Graduating Class of His Own School

By DON C. WATERS
Associated Press Writer
HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers says President Nixon's course of disengagement from Southeast Asia has been carefully charted and is irreversible.

His speech before 470 graduates and 3,000 guests at Colgate University Sunday was followed by a pledge from 159 graduates that if drafted they will disobey an order assigning them to a combat role in Southeast Asia.

Rogers' speech, which aides said was written to bridge the generation gap, was not interrupted, but the 1971 class valedictorian, Thomas W. O'Brien, followed with what he called a "counter statement." In it he read off the names of 159 seniors who had pledged not to fight in Southeast Asia.

As O'Brien read each name, a graduate stood up.

When Colgate President Thomas A. Bartlett returned to the rostrum after O'Brien's speech, he said, he was "profoundly disappointed at this misuse of me, misuse of this occasion and misuse of the secretary of state."

As many in the audience applauded, Bartlett apologized to Rogers.

O'Brien told reporters later that his speech had been an effort to "keep the far left of the school from going bananas." He said he personally found Rogers a "nice guy" and that the counter statement was not meant as a personal rebuke.

BOATING IS SAFER

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — Boating accidents in the United States continue to decline, reports the U.S. Coast Guard. Boating accidents in 1970 totaled 3,803. In 1969 the total was 4,067 while in 1966 the figure was 4,350.

However, fatal accidents were on the rise. There were 1,132 boating deaths in 1970 as compared to 1,058 in 1969.

Okay Cement Plant Wins Safety Prize

CHICAGO, May 27, 1971.—The National Safety Council announced today that the Okay plant of Ideal Cement Company, Division of Ideal Basic Industries, Inc., at Okay, is to be presented the council's Certificate of Commendation for its excellent safety record.

The award is presented only where an establishment's record satisfied rigid requirements laid down in the Council's Award Plan for Recognizing Good Industrial Safety Records.

Howard Pyle, President of the National Safety Council, in a letter of congratulations to Byron Thompson, Plant Manager of the Okay Plant, explained that the local plant qualified for the award because of its injury-free period of 284,531 man-hours from October 6, 1969 to December 31, 1970.

A presentation ceremony of this Certificate of Commendation will be held at Safety Awards Dinner for all Okay plant employees on June 5, 1971. Two additional awards will be presented to the Okay employees at that time: The Company's Charles Boettcher Annual Safety Award and the Portland Cement Association Safety Trophy Award.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED for it, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

GREAT LEGS: WHY HIDE 'EM?

My wife was one of the biggest midi-skirt fighters. She still has pinned to her bulletin board several of your caustic comments on this miserable style, i.e.: "Or as the father said about his long-haired son, 'It (the midi) hangs around the wrong places and needs a good trimming!'"

She knew she had great legs and she wasn't going to hide them: THEN! Well, she still has great legs, but now all she ever wears are pants suits. I haven't seen her in a dress for so long I'm beginning to wonder if I married a woman. She even wears evening pants to cocktail parties. I don't go for skirts up to the thigh (on My wife, that is), but I'd sure like to see a little leg once in a while and I know other men would too. She argues, "It's the style."

Could you please ask the ladies, Helen, to consider us "leg men" and stop covering up the scenery? Great legs are to be seen, not just heard about.—WALLY

Dear Wally:
All is not lost: When your wife steps out in thigh-high hot pants, remember, you asked for them, sorta.—H.

Dear Helen:
Women's liberation has made big headlines, but do the gals really buy it? As a male women's page editor (yes, we do exist), I tried an experiment. I scrounged around and found booklets — good ones — on 1. Women: Equal or Inferior?; 2. How to get Best Results from your Washing Machine; and 3. Eat Up and Get thin: The Housewife's Diet.

We ran a story about each subject, giving Women's Lib the biggest play.

Then we offered the booklets for the usual SASE. (Self-Addressed Stamped Envelope). Results: Judging from requests, women are twice as interested in getting thin as they are in putting out a good wash (which figures), and Liberation barely hangs in there. In all, we sent out five Lib booklets; 164 on washing machines; and 336 on "eat and get thin."

This may help to prove only that females would rather look good than do good. However, I've noticed that the most popular (and solvent) women's magazines stay with household hints, beauty care, family items and how to catch and keep a man. There editors are pretty hep.

Lib Kids: You still have a long way to go!—MALE EDITOR IN A FEMALE WORLD.

Dear Male:
An obvious Women's Lib answer to your experiment is: "Liberated women don't read the 'society pages.' Therefore your offers only reached the types who would respond to the second and third-mentioned booklets."

My answer to your letter is: "How can I get a bunch of your booklets No. 3—Eat Up and Get Thin?" My readers—by the thousands—will want to know! (And, incidentally, a lot of them are pretty well liberated.)—H. Dear Helen:

Whatever happened to the "Social Security benefits for working wives" bill that was up before the Ways and Means Committee last year? It would enable a married couple to receive greater S.S. benefits by combining their earnings, so that what a wife pays in to Social Security wouldn't be entirely lost.—MRS. T.

Dear Mrs. T.:
A letter from the bill's chief sponsor, Representative Edward J. Patten (Dem. N.J.) says that the Ways and Means Committee has taken recent action on his bill (H.R. 6500) but has added a major restriction: The committee favors higher S.S. benefits for working wives but only if the couple worked 20 years after they were married. He terms this "ridiculous and unfair."

For further information, write to Rep. Edward Patten, 2332 Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, D.C., 20515.—H.

Conservation Workshop June 7-11

The 8th Annual Arkansas Youth Conservation Workshop will be held at Arkansas A&M College in Monticello the week of June 7-11, 1971. The announcement was made by Joe H. Mott, Workshop Director, and Coordinator, Arkansas Soil and Water Conservation Commission.

The workshop is a cooperative effort to provide a well-rounded experience in environmental sciences for 100 boys selected by local Conservation Districts. It was first held in 1964 on the campus of Arkansas Tech College in Russellville. Subsequently, it has been held at the University of Arkansas, Arkansas State University, and Henderson State College.

The Arkansas Association of Conservation Districts and the Razorback Chapter, Soil Conservation Society of America, co-sponsor the workshop. Cooperation is the key to the success of this annual event. Some of the agencies that furnish instruction and guidance are the U.S. Soil Conservation Service and Forest Service and State agency representatives from the Soil and Water Conservation Commission, Game and Fish Commission, Pollution Control Commission, Department of Education, State Health Department, Law Enforcement Training Academy, and the staff of Arkansas A&M College.

In addition to classroom activities, the boys will tour the Georgia Pacific Forest Products Plant in Crossett. Other tours to observe soil and water management and forestry and fish operations are planned. State Senator John F. Gibson will address the workshop at the recognition session at the close of the workshop.

The workshop is open to boys who will be juniors or seniors in the fall 1971 school year and who plan an environmental-related career. David Sanders, a junior, was selected to attend the workshop, sponsored by the Hempstead County Soil and Water Conservation District.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Television almost totally ignored the Memorial Day weekend, presuming it to be a time when the usual audience is in its own or somebody else's backyard eating burned meat or stalled in bumper-to-bumper traffic.

The big exception was ABC's special Saturday night, a two hour taped reprise of the Indianapolis 500 which commentator Jim McKay repeatedly identified as "America's most prestigious motor race," run earlier in the day. In previous years, it was weeks before home audience had a glimpse of the race high lights.

The network's sports staff had only a few hours to throw the program together. It handled it well, all things considered.

This year's race, with some many spectacular pileups and crashes that even demolition derby fans would have relished the carnage, was something else.

There was even a suspense story within the coverage. ABC sports-caster Chris Schenkel, scheduled to do the running commentary on the race, was a passenger in the pace car when it crashed into a photographers' stand at the start of the race. McKay lost his cool and was so concerned about the fate of the car's occupants that he ignored the race. Jackie Stewart, the Scottish race driver serving as expert, calmly took over the running report.

Later, looking shaken, Schenkel appeared briefly on camera and said he was okay but was quitting work for the day.

That meant McKay—the color man—had to leap into the gap on an emergency basis. He did very well, with substantial help from Stewart.

Taped highlights of any events—sports or news—can never substitute for the live report. Long before the TV program was on the air, television and radio news programs had carried the name of the winner—Al Unser—and had told of the accidents that punctuated the race. ABC, however, chose to cover the race as if it were live, but under the circumstances, it seems to have been the only way.

Motor racing is not the most satisfactory spectator sport to watch set-side. For the uninitiated, the drama had to be the disasters. The fine points, such as skillful techniques in passing and getting around curves, were pretty much lost on the small screens.

McKay and company had a tendency to presume too much knowledge on the part of the viewer. The program was almost half over before somebody mentioned casually the race was 500 miles, not 500 times around the track. Nobody ever did tell us the significance of the yellow, red, green and black flags but referred to them constantly. If one watched long enough, their meaning began to be clear.

The program was too long, with too many excursions into pre-race interviews with drivers. The commercials seemed frequent and awkwardly placed.

Al Unser Takes Famous Indy 500

By MIKE HARRIS

Associated Press Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A subdued but happy Al Unser accepted a check for $238,454.31 at the Indianapolis 500-mile race victory dinner here Sunday night.

The 33-year-old driver from Albuquerque, N.M., displayed a mood in striking contrast to his bubbling acceptance of last year's winner's check of $271,697.72. The younger brother of 1968 winner Bobby Unser said, "It's a great pleasure to be up here in the same position again this year. I owe a lot to everyone and I can hardly believe this."

The dark-haired, long-sideburned Unser, who dominated United States Auto Club racing for the past two years, thanks everyone for his success, particularly his chief mechanic George Bignotti, who has been chief mechanic for five Indy 500 winners.

"This was a difficult month for all of us. My speeds went up and down like a yo-yo," Unser said. "There were times when George couldn't figure out what I was doing wrong and there were times when I couldn't figure out what George was doing wrong. But we were able to pull it out and I have to thank George for it."

Denny Zimmerman of Glensbury, Conn., accepted the award as rookie of the year at the dinner. His eighth-place finish was the highest by any of the four first-year starters in the race.

Zimmerman won $1,000 and the 20-year-old Stark & Wetzel trophy in succeeding Donnie Allison, Hueytown, Ala., for the honor.

Allison, who finished sixth Saturday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, surprised nearly everyone at the victory dinner by showing up after taking second place in the Charlotte, S.C., 600-mile stock car race only hours earlier.

The total prize money for the Indy 500 was $1,001,604.22, the second straight year the checks have totaled more than $1 million. However, Tony Hulman, Speedway owner, said accessory prize money dropped more than $30,000 and had to be made up by increased prize checks from the Speedway.

The overall total for this year's race, which attracted a gate of about 300,000, was a record payoff.

Peter Revson, New York City, who finished 22nd last year and won $16,627, finished second in this year's race and pocketed a substantial $103,198.24. This year's third-place finisher, three-time Indy 500 winner A.J. Foyt Jr., took home a total of $64,759.24, while fourth-place Jim Malloy won $38,669.24.

It actually is the car that wins the prize money and the driver usually pockets about 50 per cent of the take. Unser said earlier this month that of his first place winnings of $271,697.72 in 1970, he wound up with less than $75,000.

The co-owners of the car, Vel Melech and Parnelli Jones of Torrance, Calif., will have the job of distributing the record earnings to their team.

Mark Donohue, Media, Pa., was well below his earnings of last year. Donohue, who finished 25th this year after his second-place finish in 1970, won $23,697.24 compared to $86,427 last year.

Donohue dominated the race for the 66 laps in his McLaren Mark 16 car until teeth sheered off his high speed transmission gear on the next lap. The 34-year-old graduate engineer, who's practice speeds were the talk of the Speedway the whole month, set a new lap record at 174.961 miles per hour on the lap before he lost his high gear. The old record was 168.666 by Lloyd Ruby in the 1968 race.

Donohue's car, parked in the infield in the fourth, corner, was later involved in the crash in which Mike Mosley, Brown-burg, Ind., was injured. Mosley suffered a broken elbow and leg and burns on his left

Willie Mays Leads N.L. in Homers

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer
Willie Mays' homing instincts are rubbing off on the rest of the San Francisco Giants.

Mays socked a two-run homer in the opener of a Sunday doubleheader to become the National League's all-time scoring leader and give the explosive Giants the first leg of a 5-4, 8-7 sweep over the Montreal Expos.

The San Francisco superstar, whose seventh inning homer capped a three-run comeback, crossed the plate again in the second game—won by the Giants with a three-run salvo in the ninth—for a career total of 1,951 runs.

He passed Stan Musial 1,949 on the all-time list headed by American League Hall of Famers Ty Cobb (2,244) and Babe Ruth (2,174).

In other NL games, Pittsburgh blasted the Chicago Cubs 10-0; San Diego upended the New York Mets 4-2; St. Louis whipped Atlanta 8-3; Los Angeles nipped Philadelphia 2-1 in 12 innings and Cincinnati shaded Houston 2-1.

In the American League, Baltimore edged Minnesota 6-5; Detroit trimmed Milwaukee 9-5; the Chicago White Sox squeezed by Cleveland 3-2 in 10 innings and the New York Yankees downed California 7-4. Rain forced postponement of the Oakland-Boston and Kansas City-Washington games.

The Giants trailed 4-2 in the first game when Jimmy Rosario opened the seventh with a single and Bobby Bonds was hit by a Bill Stoneman pitch. Chris Speier forced Bonds at second, but Rosario scored when second baseman Gary Sutherland threw away the relay for an error.

Mays then walloped his 638th career homer and 10th of the season, sending Speier home with the tying run and scoring the winner—and record-breaker—homer.

A five-run burst in the fourth inning of the second game gave Montreal a 6-3 lead and Bob Bailey homered for the Expos in the seventh. But Bonds slammed a two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh and singled—for his fourth hit of the game—between two outs and a pair of walks in the ninth.

Mike Marshall wild-pitched one run home, walked Allan Gallagher on a 3-2 count to refill the bases and was tagged for a two-run single by Tito Fuentes that gave the Giants their fourth consecutive victory and seventh in eight games.

They lead the NL West by a whopping 10½ lengths.

Bob Moose, backed by an eight-run uprising in the fourth, pitched a three-hitter for the Pirates against the Cubs.

Roberto Clemente drilled a three-run homer, Willie Stargell followed with a tape measure blast and Bob Robertson hit a two-run homer in the fourth, which also was marked by Ken Holtzman's three wild pitches—one of them on a third strike to Richie Hebner with two out and no runs in.

Ivan Murrell switched from the controversial Japanese-made bat he had been swinging to a conventional American model and smashed a tie-breaking two-run homer in the fifth that carried the Padres past the Mets.

Clay Kirby checked New York on seven hits as the Padres snapped a five-game losing streak.

Lou Brock stretched his hitting streak to 26 games with a triple and single as the Cardinals pounded the Braves for their sixth consecutive victory.

Left-hander Steve Carlton posted his ninth triumph—tops in the league—with the help of Joe Hague's three-run homer and a two-run wallop by Jose Cardenal.

Willie Davis lifted the Dodgers into a 1-1 tie with a run-scoring single in the sixth, extending his hitting streak through 22 games, and they pushed over the tie-breaker on a bases-loaded sacrifice fly by Willie Crawford in the 12th.

Bob Allison Wins World 600 Auto Race

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Bobby Allison had his heart set on being a high school football hero, but there wasn't room for a 98-pound halfback.

"They made me the water-boy," recalls Bobby. He made his own room in auto racing—brother Donnie soon tagged along for the ride—and Sunday 33-year-old Bobby whipped the younger Allison to win the World 600.

"It's the biggest thrill of my career," said Bobby, "and makes up for all the touchdowns I never scored." Allison led 309 of the 400 laps in the globe's longest stock car grind and won by over a mile at a record speed of 140.442 miles an hour.

Donnie, the World 600 defending champion, competed a productive if winless weekend. He finished sixth in the Indianapolis 500 Saturday to earn over $30,000 and made another $15,250 at Charlotte.

Only three cars among 40 starters seriously challenged for the $29,800 winner's payoff. It became an Allison family affair when Chevrolet's new-found ace Charlie Glotzbach slammed into a wall.

"It was one less guy to beat," said Bobby. "It eased the pressure. Suddenly, it looked like Donnie and me."

Bobby hadn't done well in past speed wars between "Donnie and me." The leathery 31-year-old junior member of the clan had whipped his brother four straight times when they finished races running 1-2.

"I finally did it," said the winner. "It's always a proud moment for our family when Donnie and me run 1-2, but I'll admit it's nice to win once."

The last time Donnie edged Bobby was two weeks ago in the Alabama 500 at Talladega, not far from their Hueytown, Ala., home.

Baltimore Nips Twins By 6-5 Score

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer
Minnesota got another taste of the Baltimore Chop ... and the two-fisted flurry left the Twins beside themselves and the Orioles a little closer to the Boston Red Sox.

"We're rolling again and getting the right amount of runs," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver after the Orioles continued their habit of beating Minnesota with a 6-5 triumph Sunday and moved within 2½ games of Boston in the American League East.

The defending World Champion Orioles, who whipped the Twins without a loss in playoff series in 1969 and 1970, thus won the rubber match of the three-game set and proved just the right tonic for Manager Earl Weaver.

Weaver should be pleased. The Orioles winged back from a 7-6 loss Friday night that shoved them four games behind the Red Sox, bombing Minnesota 11-8 Saturday before scoring the winning runs Sunday with the aid of three walks and a wild pitch.

The Red Sox lost a half game to the Orioles when their contest with Oakland was postponed by rain. The Chicago White Sox stopped the Cleveland Indians 3-2; the Detroit Tigers whacked the Milwaukee Brewers 9-5 and the New York Yankees clouted the California Angels 7-4 in Sunday's other action. Rain washed out Kansas City at Washington.

In the National League, Pittsburgh plastered Chicago 10-0; San Diego clipped New York 4-2; Los Angeles beat Philadelphia 2-1 in 12 innings; St. Louis ripped Atlanta 8-3; Cincinnati topped Houston 2-1 and San Francisco took a doubleheader from Montreal 5-4 and 8-7.

The Orioles led only by 3-2 before putting the game away with their three-run eighth that helped winner Mike Cuellar withstand home runs by Tony Oliva and Steve Braun with relief help.

Baltimore loaded the bases against reliever Ron Peranoski with two walks and Brooks Robinson's bunt single. The first run scored on Ellie Hendricks' ground out and another came in on Mark Belanger's single.

Jim Strickland relieved Peranoski at this point and struck out Cuellar before throwing a wild pitch that allowed Robinson to race home with the clincher.

Jay Johnstone drew a bases-loaded walk from Phil Hennigan with two out in the 10th inning to give the White Sox their success over the Indians.

The winners filled the bases in the 10th on two walks and an infield single by pinch-hitter Tom Egan before Hennigan walked Johnstone.

Rich McKinney's two-run double in the seventh lifted Chicago into a 2-2 tie.

Dick McAuliffe singled home the go-ahead run and Al Kaline capped a five-run explosion in the ninth with a three-run homer for Detroit. The rally snapped a 4-4 tie and helped the Tigers shrug off a ninth-inning homer by the Brewers' Bill Voss.

Lee Trevino Winner of Golf Classic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) —

Lee Trevino moved out of character and put a sober, serious expression on his usually-grinning face after winning the $175,000 Danny Thomas Memphis Golf Classic.

"The game of golf has been good to me and I want to put back into it something that I'm taking out," the normally happy-go-lucky guy said.

He announced he was donating $5,000 from his $35,000 purse to St. Jude's Hospital, the charitable beneficiary of this event.

"I want to do something for the game," he continued.

As usual, the swarthy, stocky ex-Marine drew a huge portion of the gallery in his final round action on the short little Colonial Country Club course.

And he didn't disappoint them a bit—keeping up a non-stop string of chatter, comment, commentary and quips as he cut out a final round 67, three under par, that nailed down his seventh career tour triumph by four strokes. He led all the way and was never really in danger. He finished with a 268 total, 12 under par.

Tied for second at 272 were four non-winning tour regulars, Jerry Heard, Randy Wolf, Lee Elder and Hale Irwin. Heard and Wolff closed up with 64s, six under par on the 6,466 yard layout. Elder had a 66 and Irwin a 68.

First round leader Larry Ziegler, 69, and veteran Don January, 67, followed at 273.

Favor Deceit in 'Mother Goose'

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Deceit is quite a filly. No fooling.

E.P. Taylor's 3-year-old filly added a victory in the $89,925 Mother Goose Stakes Saturday at Belmont Park to her win in the Acorn and moved to within a step of the New York Racing Association's Triple Crown for fillies.

A victory in the $100,000-added, 1½-mile Coaching Club American Oaks June 19 would put Deceit in the company of Dark Morage and Shuvee as the only winners of the 11-year-old triple.

John L. Rotz sent Deceit through an opening in the upper stretch and she got home by three-quarters of a length in front of Mrs. Louisa d'A Carpenter's Graffiti for a winning mutuel of $13.60 after being clocked in 1:50 1-5 for the 1½ miles. Aisco Stable's Forward Gal was third.

Deceit had to share the spotlight with a colt who did not even leave his Belmont Barn—Canonero II, the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner who will try for the Belmont Stakes and the Triple Crown next Saturday.

A Venezuelan veterinarian confirmed an American vet's findings that the colt had a skin rash and a slight infection in his right hind foot but said the rash was clearing up and that foot infection, termed minor, was responding to treatment.

Canonero II galloped 2½ miles on the grass in the rain Sunday and trainer Juan Arias once again said the colt would be ready for the Belmont.

Belmont Park kicked off Belmont Stakes week today with the $100,000-added Metropolitan Handicap. Also on today's nation card was Garden State Park's $100,000-added Jersey Derby which could produce a Belmont starter or two.

Americans Are Favored in Scotland

By THOMAS A. REEDY
CARNOSTIE, Scotland (AP) — A field of 250 golfers, including 58 Americans, collided today in the opening round of the week-long British Amateur Golf Championship, and the Scots felt power-driving youth would win it.

The young American Walker Cup stars were among the favorites, even though the U.S. lost the trophy to the British Isles at St. Andrews last week.

Carnoustie's brutal 6,861-yard par 72 links on the North Sea Coast, is probably the most demanding layout in the world.

"It's a real one," said 21-year-old Tom Kite of Austin, Tex. "It's much tougher than St. Andrews. You've got to hit the ball here. One mistake and you're done. I like it and I have a chance."

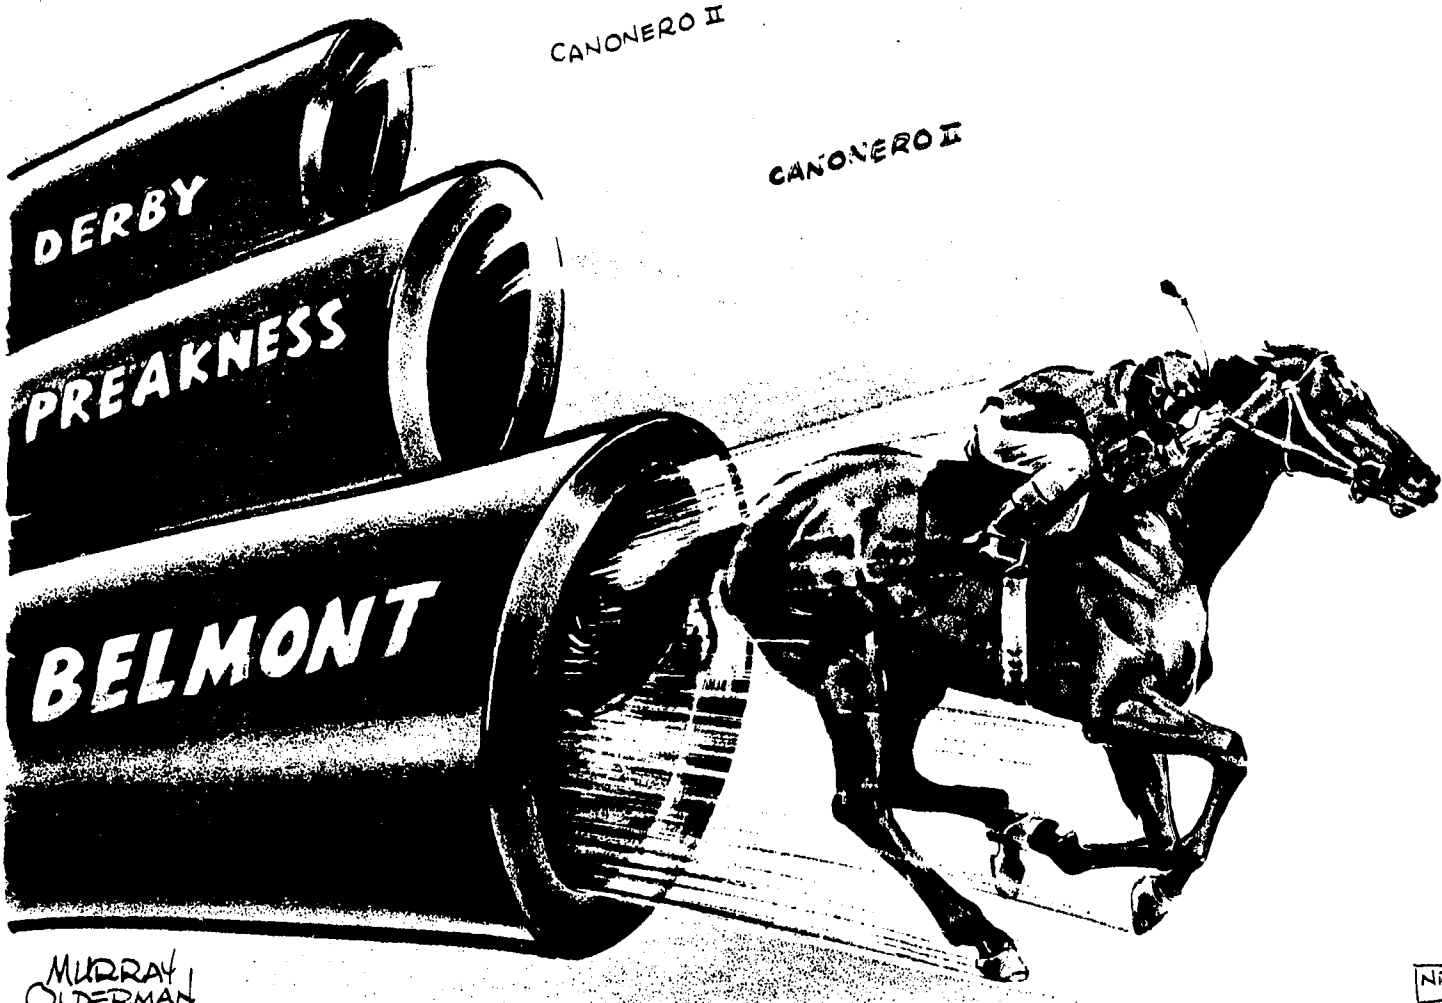

Steve Melnyk, former U.S. amateur champion from Florida, echoed the sentiment and so did the reigning U.S. amateur king, Lanny Wadkins, 21, of Richmond, Va.

Whoever wins will play probably upward of 140 holes in eight matches to Saturday's final decisions, in chill weather with winds that can change from hour to hour.

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Steve Louden of Dallas, Tex., set the best speed with an 89.456 mph average in his Brabham Formula B car at the 4th Annual Cajun Prix sport car races Sunday.

Bill Fuller of Oakdale, La., won the big car feature and finished with the second best average of the day at 84.112 mph in his Lola T70.

Canonero II: Two Down, One to Go

By IRA BERKOW and TITO RUIZ

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Later, on this gray, threatening morning, jockey Gustavo Avila would say that, si, Canonero II enjoyed his first gallop around the Belmont Park track and found the surroundings to his liking.

When he does not approve of the working conditions, Canonero drags along like a lad going to piano lessons with a baseball glove on his belt.

"But he was alert this morning and he was exploring," said Avila. "That's a good sign." With Avila aboard, Canonero galloped easily around the 1½-mile track. As a horse developing a taste for horticulture—he won the blanket of roses at the Kentucky Derby and the black-eyed Susans at the Preakness—Canonero must surely have been impressed with the colorful clusters of azaleas, daffodils, orchids, tulips, cinerarias, andro-medas and rhododendrons in the infield.

He must also have liked the two lakes there, and the rabbits, ducks and geese dashing and flapping in and out of the manicured bushes.

He must have been curious about the Long Island Railroad tracks that go by the backside of Belmont Park.

Most of all, though, the big, red three-year-old colt must have had a vision of what it will be like on June 5. On that Saturday afternoon he will try to become the first horse in 23 years to win the Triple Crown. This morning, all he could hear was the sound of his own hoof beats and his mild snorting; in two weeks he will hear the roar of perhaps 70,000 fans.

If he is a historian, as well as a horticulturist, Canonero must have been musing that 16 other horses have won the first two legs of the Triple Crown, but only eight of them won the Belmont Stakes, too.

The winners were Sir Barton (1919), Gallant Fox (1930), Omaha (1935), War Admiral (1937), Whirlaway (1941), Count Fleet (1943), Assault (1946) and Citation (1948). Those who lost in the Belmont were Pensieve (1944), Tim Tam (1958), Carry Back (1961), Northern Dancer (1964), Kauai King (1966) and Majestic Prince (1969). (Burgoo King in 1932 and Bold Adventure in 1936 were not nominated for the Belmont Stakes.)

Oliver Adams Retires as Farm Agent

LITTLE ROCK—After more than a third of a century of service to agriculture, Oliver L.

OLIVER L. ADAMS, Adams, county Extension agent, Carroll County, retired on May 31, 1971.

Adams is a native of Washington County and attended public school at Springdale. He received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Arkansas and has done graduate work there.

Immediately after graduation he taught vocational agriculture at Green Forest for five years. He joined the University of Arkansas' Agricultural Extension Service in April of 1934 as county agent for Boone County. In October of 1938, he was transferred to Hempstead County where he served until September of 1959 when he moved to Berryville as county Extension agent for Carroll County.

Adams has been active in civic work in the counties in which he has worked. He was a member of the Lions Club of Harrison, and has served as president of both the Hope and Berryville Rotary Clubs. He has had continuous service in Rotary for 28 years. He has membership in the Yell Lodge No. 64, F. & A. M. Green Forest for 36 years; Razorback Letterman's Club; Alpha Zeta, honorary agricultural fraternity; and the Arkansas and National Associations of County Agricultural Agents. He is a charter member of the Arkansas Association and has held various offices and committee assignments.

In 1945, Adams received the Distinguished Service Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents for his outstanding work with the people of Hempstead County in helping them develop a sound agricultural program. Since moving to Berryville he has given leadership to programs in agriculture, youth work and community resource development.

Adams is married to the former Vella Mae Simpson and they have two children and three grandchildren. A daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Stockman, of Indianapolis, Indiana, and a son, Oliver L. Adams, Jr., a lawyer of Rogers, Arkansas. The Adams will remain in Berryville after he retires.

Among his civic works during his long residence in Hope one of Mr. Adams' highlights was his appearance at Washington, D.C., Nov. 4, 1946, as a public witness supporting the application of Hope Broadcasting Co. for a permit to operate on the 1490 KC must have had a sense of high pride, amid puffs of breath on this cool morning, to be in such a position at all. For he and his trainer, Juan Arias, had been ignored before the Derby, and defamed before the Preakness.

Though he was reared in Kentucky, he is owned by Venezuelans and Caracas is his home now. His purchase price of $1,200 at the Keeneland yearling sales was hardly imposing. The casual way in which he galloped in workouts seemed eccentric by American standards, and the 32-year-old Arias was put down as immature and just this side of incompetent.

Even Canonero's physical stature drew smirks. "He looks like a timber horse at a hunt meeting," said one observer. Few racing experts knew much about him, or cared to know. He had been a 30-1 shot in the Derby, but came from 20 lengths back to win going away.

Afterward, he was considered a freak winner: The 20-horse field was too large, it was said, and so many of the beaten field had traffic trouble. Also, the running time was one of the slowest in years.

In a left-handed compliment, Eddie Arcaro said, "I don't know why they keep knocking him. He's just as bad as the rest of them. It's about the worst bunch I ever saw."

Several of the Derby bunch ran in the Preakness. Canonero showed his versatility, imperturbability and mettle by breaking out in front with Eastern Fleet, running neck and neck most of the race, and then pulling away down the stretch and breaking Nashua's 16-year track record.

The next day, a purchase offer of $4 million was made to his owners. But the Venezuelan government, who now deem him a national hero and "a worldwide ambassador," said that they would meet any offers, just to keep Canonero a citizen.

Canonero must also have taken devilish delight, this morning, in knowing that there was a problem gaining a field to contest him in the Belmont Stakes. Eastern Fleet, for example, has been shipped to New Jersey. A horse can actually develop an incurable inferiority complex when he can't overtake a contender.

"The whole world has taken Canonero to its heart," said Arias, as Canonero now came off the track. "Not only is he a winning horse, but he is not stuffed up about this winnings."

Arias, hunched, peered at Canonero's back, like a diamond-cut eye glass, through an eye glass. Arias then stroked the horse's neck. "How you doin', old boy?" he said in Spanish.

Canonero must have been doing just fine.

Letters To The Editor

This your newspaper. Write to it. Address letters to: Editor The Star, P.O. Box 648, Hope, Ark. 71801. All letters must be signed, with address so you are identified to the newspaper staff, but if the character of the letter permits we will allow use of a pen-name in the publication, in case you should add "Citizen," or some other word below your real name and address.

Pen-names are permitted when a letter deals only with issues. Direct attacks upon public officials, however, must bear the writer's name for publication.

Editor the Star: Congratulations to the people of Hope on their activity to stop or slow down the sale of habitforming drugs.

The three big destroyers of health and life itself are tobacco, alcohol, and narcotic drugs. The worst of these three is tobacco. The Old Testament reveals to us that people in Asia in the Old Testament days lived to hundreds of years old—one reaching the age of 969 years. The Average lifetime in Asia today is 40 years. Tobacco was unknown in that part of the world until Columbus discovered America, and people in Asia, according to the Bible, were very careful of what they took into their bodies.

There are a number of poisons, some of them very deadly, in tobacco, and the use of tobacco defiles the body which is according to the Bible the temple of God. In many places in the Bible it states, "Ye are God's temple." Life will be shortened to the cigarette smoker—one minute for every minute he smokes, according to the American Cancer Society.

But, the American Cancer Society may not reach little children. Our most important asset is a baby child. The most important thing a child should learn is good habits and self-discipline. It is entirely too easy for a child to buy tobacco products in Arkansas, regardless of a law against selling them to minors. There must be more discipline in the home, the school, and all the rest of the way through society of the youth of America. Too many teachers and a few ministers of the churches use tobacco themselves. Your paper, a few years ago gave me an award of $10 on an article written on a bond issue. I would like to return this $10 plus $5 more if the people in Hope, mainly teachers, will conduct an essay contest among teenagers on the harmfulness of tobacco. I would want at least 50 teenagers to take part in the contest. If such a program is used, I will mail my check for $15. If I can be of any help in any way, please advise.

Mrs. Court's Dreams Are Shattered

PARIS (AP) — Mrs. Margaret Court's dreams of a second consecutive women's tennis grand slam crumbled on a side court at Roland Garros Stadium Sunday before the determined assault of Mrs. Gail Chanfreau, an Australian transplanted to France through marriage.

Mrs. Chanfreau, 26, the former Gail Sherrieff, had never before taken a set off Mrs. Court in what she estimated at about 10 previous duels. She won 6-3, 6-4 after completely dominating the match.

The defeat of Mrs. Court—who had won the Australian, French, Wimbledon and Forest Hills championships last year—overshadowed a day in which Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., Bob Lutz, of Los Angeles and defending champion Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia won their third round singles matches.

The results gave the United States six places in the final 16 of the men's singles.

Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., won her third round match to give the United States two of the final eight places in the women's singles.

Richey, seeded No. 4, defeated Colin Dibley of Australia, 6-1, 6-3, 8-6. Richey plays Tuesday in the fourth round.

Lutz, seeded No. 9, had a struggle all the way with Jun Kuki, Japan, winning 6-1, 5-7, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4. Lutz also plays Tuesday.

Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia eliminated Tom Gorman of Seattle, 6-3, 6-1, 7-5 while Kodes, seeded No. 1, took a 6-4, 9-7, 6-2 victory from Bob Carmichael of Australia.

RACING ON SUNDAY

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — When the thoroughbred race track opened here in 1937 the policy was "never on Sunday."

But this year there is to be racing on 12 Sundays at the Delaware Park track. The first meeting of 33 days runs through Monday, July 5. The second meeting of 32 days runs from Aug. 21 through Sunday, Sept. 26. The track will be closed on Tuesdays at both meetings.

Another departure from the past will find Friday racing starting at 3:30 o'clock instead of 1:30.

TORNADO

The deadly winds which annually claim a toll in lives and property in the United States strike with greatest frequency during the months from April through June and between the Rockies and the Appalachians. They form when a cold front overrides a warm air mass. The lighter warm, moist air rushes upward through the cool, dry air, creating turbulence which moves counterclockwise under influence of the earth's rotation. Out of this comes the familiar funnel cloud, spiraling earthward around a partial vacuum sucking up everything in its path.

Western Union Strike Set Tonight

By MICHAEL J. REILLY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strike of more than 17,000 Western Union employees is set for midnight EDT in the wake of union rejection of what the company called its final offer.

Six weeks of bargaining ended in recess Sunday after the company presented its two-year proposal in a two-hour meeting with union negotiators.

"We have our best offer up and we are prepared to take a strike if we have to," said R.H. Cobb, chief Western Union negotiator.

"Their latest proposal is unacceptable," commented E.L. Hageman, president of the AFL-CIO United Telegraph Workers. "It is much too low and it is not in accordance with the wage patterns being negotiated in other companies and industries."

Both sides agreed to remain available to resume negotiations although the union bargaining team split up and members returned to their homes.

In New York, Morton Bahr, a Communications Workers of America vice president, reported negotiations have broken down with Western Union and a strike by 3,100 members is set for midnight in New York and northern New Jersey. No new talks are planned at present and no mediator is involved, Bahr said.

The union is seeking a 16-percent increase in each year of a two-year contract. Western Union offered a 10-percent hike for each year.

But Hageman said the first-year increase offered by Western Union would have been 6 per cent effective June 1, with another 4 per cent added "the day of approval by the Federal Communications Commission of an increase in telegraph rates."

He rejected any raise conditioned on FCC approval of new telegraph rates. "We feel this is an illegal approach that would ultimately give the FCC power to control wages in a union," Hageman said.

The strike vote authorizing leadership to call a walkout was taken earlier this month. All but some 2,500 Western Union employees are involved. Those are under the Communications Workers of America and are continuing separate negotiations with the company in New York.

Negotiators for the national group said unsettled points in addition to general wages include pension increases, prohibition of contracting out workers and restrictions on personnel transfers.

Cobb said the company is ready for a strike and would continue to operate all leased-wire facilities, TWX, Telex and government services. Mailgrams would be accepted, but no other public messages would be handled.

Czechs Still Watched Suspiciously by the Russian Hierarchy

PRAGUE (AP) — The long crisis has been overcome, Czechoslovakia is locked firmly in the Soviet bloc again, but the struggle must continue against rightists and Western influence.

That message from the ruling Communist party, offering little prospect of early relaxation, was given the public today in the final unanimous resolution of the 14th party congress. It was published in all newspapers.

The five-day congress ended Saturday after confirming Gustav Husak as party chief and announcing a new 115-member, drastically reshuffled Central Committee. Husak succeeded popular reformer Alexander Dubcek eight months after the Soviet invasion in August 1968. "The grave crisis in the party and society has been overcome," the policy resolution declared. But went on to say that "right-wing opportunism and revisionism," continue to be "the main danger we must fight against."

It warned that "the politically defeated right wing forces are adjusting their tactics to new conditions, they are trying to influence the thinking of part of the people to misuse our mistakes ... the completion of the defeat of the rightist in the ideological sphere is, at the present stage, an especially important task."

The party conceded that the struggle against the right wing "presupposes that we shall overcome rigid, dogmatic interpretations of Marx-Leninism," meaning the extreme left.

Urging "no compromises" in ideology, the party demanded strengthening of "class-conscious discipline" and "struggle against all expressions of petty bourgeois thinking, survival of religious thinking, nationalism, anti-Sovietism and all forms of bourgeois ideology."

Reflecting party concern over Czechoslovakia's uncommitted, alienated youth, the resolution said youth must be taught "to harbor sincere relations of friendship toward the U.S.S.R." and all Socialist countries "so that the noble ideas of socialism and communism will be the foundation of their conviction and world outlook."

Some sources said three more persons were transferred, and others said there were even more.

Nationalist officials provided U.S. diplomatic and military representatives with what the Nationalists considered was proof of anti-government activity, including attempting to visit persons convicted of political crimes and providing advice in the preparation and use of explosives, the sources said.

They said some of those transferred were cooperating with each other in these activities while others were working alone. Some of the men admitted their activities were antigovernment; others denied any such intention, sources said.

But all reportedly said they were acting without any kind of official U.S. approval.

American officials refused to discuss the transfers, but it was believed the men faced no disciplinary action. And U.S. military commanders have issued an order to all units in Formosa prohibiting involvement in local politics, sources said.

Names of the men transferred were not available, nor was it known where they were transferred to. Their activities were believed to have been uncovered during interrogation of anti-government Chinese and Formosans arrested in late February and early March.

The Americans implicated were followed regularly by Nationalist security police and the police compiled very thorough records of those they met and what was said at some of the meetings.

Kidnapers in Turkey Are Surrounded

By RODNEY PRIDER

ISTANBUL (AP) — Angry mobs and a cordon of troops and police today surrounded an apartment house where two armed youths wanted for the kidnap-murder of Israeli Consul-General Ephraim Elrom held a 14-year-old girl hostage.

The two young armed terrorists said they would release the girl if they were given safe conduct out of the country.

"We are going to wait patiently," one troop commander said. But another army officer said the two youths would be handed over to the mob if the hostage was not freed soon.

Soldiers and police evacuated neighboring apartments and houses and sealed off the third-floor apartment where the terrorists held Sebil Erkan, the daughter of Army Maj. Dincer Erkan. The youths allowed Mrs. Erkan and her 10-year-old son to leave but ignored all pleas to free the girl.

They shouted through a smashed window to the troops below that they would kill her if the soldiers attacked or used tear gas.

Jeeps mounted with searchlights and machine guns circled the apartment building as the soldiers and police kept

Girl Slain Graduation Night Buried

By RON HARRIST
Associated Press Writer

DREW, Miss. (AP) — Some 1,300 mourners jammed this small Delta town Sunday to bury a young black girl, and speakers ranging from prominent civil rights leaders to her high school classmates urged that her death not be in vain.

Jo Etha Collier, 18, was shot to death Tuesday night shortly after she had graduated from Drew High School with honors. "The forces of evil have robbed us of one of our most dear and talented sisters," eulogized the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"How long will black people be mistreated in Mississippi? How long will black people be shot down in the Delta?" he asked the crowd gathered in the high school auditorium.

Abernathy called for massive black voter registrations to put blacks in office who will change the system so that "we can see that her living and dying was not in vain."

Abernathy's thoughts were echoed by a black classmate of the dead girl who told the crowd, "I've lost a friend, we've all lost a friend. Are we going to let Jo Etha die in vain?" He broke into sobs at this point and was unable to continue.

Most of the crowd was black, but there was a sprinkling of whites among the crowd and several white town officials took prominent parts in the funeral services.

Mayor W. O. Williford said he attended both in his capacity as mayor and as a sympathetic individual, while Police Chief J.D. Fleming led the funeral procession to the all-black cemetery in the negro section of Drew.

Merchants from Drew and surrounding towns donated money to help pay for the funeral.

Fannie Lou Hamer, a civil rights leader from nearby Ruleville, said a Jo Etha Collier Building Fund to provide a new home for the girl's family would be established.

The girl had seven brothers, and her mother is a domestic worker. Mrs. Hamer said the girl's stepfather is unable to work.

Three young white men were arrested within hours of the shooting and charged with murder. They are Wayne Parks, 25, of Drew; his brother, Wesley Parks, 26, of Memphis, Tenn.; and their nephew, Allen Wilkerson, 19, of Memphis.

up an all-night vigil outside.

Gen. Fati Turun, Istanbul's martial law commander, went to the building. He said he did not plan to use force but would wait the terrorists out.

Police said the two youths and two others were seen leaving an unoccupied house Sunday armed with submachine guns. When the police pursued them, they opened fire, wounding one policeman and a woman bystander.

Two of the youths escaped, but the other two invaded the Erkan apartment.

Vietnamese Retreat in Cambodia

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese task force with more than 100 men wounded abandoned the Cambodian rubber plantation town of Snuol today and retreated toward South Vietnam after five days of heavy fighting with North Vietnamese forces.

Field reports said U.S. helicopters helped lift out both wounded and nonwounded South Vietnamese troops from Snuol, on Highway 7 about 90 miles north of Saigon. Many of the wounded reportedly had been awaiting evacuation for several days more.

The biggest battle Sunday erupted near Highway One, 13 to 18 miles south of Da Nang, where South Vietnamese forces launched a new drive to counter enemy attempts to disrupt the pacification program.

The Saigon forces claimed killing 162 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in a series of clashes over a 10-hour period. Many of the enemy were reportedly slain by rocket-firing U.S. helicopter gunships. A communique from Saigon headquarters said three prisoners, 19 heavy weapons and 26 rifles were captured. It said South Vietnamese losses were six killed and 17 wounded.

One officer said the new Saigon drive was a big operation under way for four or five days. "It is a security operation to keep enemy pressure off the region," which American troops call the Arizona territory.

The drive is being carried out by regional force militiamen, spearheaded by armored cavalry.

Fifty-five miles to the west of Da Nang, heavy fighting was reported on the edges of the A Shau Valley, a key North Vietnamese supply transshipment point leading from Laos into the northern provinces of South Vietnam.

North Vietnamese forces slammed about 160 rounds of mortar shells into the position of a South Vietnamese infantry battalion on the eastern edge of the 30-mile long valley. The enemy shelled and launched a ground attack against the command post of an infantry regiment at Fire Base An Duong Vuong at the northern end of the valley.

Saigon headquarters said 68 North Vietnamese troops were killed. Field reports said South Vietnamese casualties in the ground fighting were 19 troops killed and 42 wounded. Casualties from the 160-round mortar barrage were light, headquarters said.

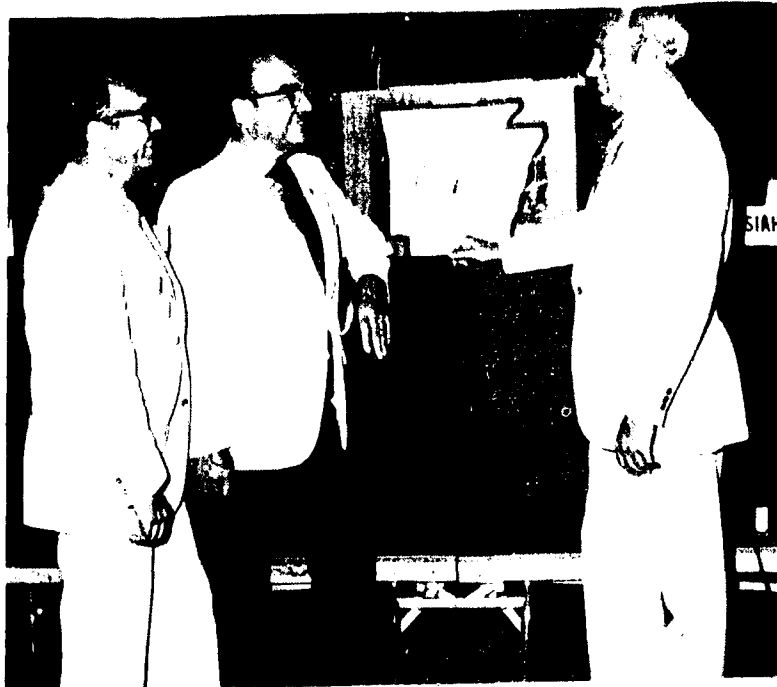

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces killed 12 South Vietnamese militiamen and seven of their civilian dependents and wounded 16 militiamen in an attack on a government outpost in the central highlands near Phu Tuc district town about 200 miles northeast of Saigon.

Saigon headquarters said 20 enemy were killed in the attack. The outpost was manned by about 100 defenders.

Another 200 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were reported slain by allied forces in scattered smaller clashes across the country over the weekend.

The new Eisenhower dollar is yet to be released and already some sharp observers have called attention to the designer's initials, "FG," appearing on both sides of the coin. While no one questioned Frank Gasperro's right to sign his work, some were interested in the precedent for such a practice.

According to the records, it happened only once before in history. George T. Morgan, designer of the 1978 Liberty-head dollar, signed his initial "M" to the obverse and the reverse of the coin. Page 191 of "Cowles Complete Encyclopedia of U.S. Coins" illustrates and describes Morgan's initial. "It is found at the tip of the hair scroll on the truncation of the neck and again on the reverse inside of the left loop of the bow, horizontal to the design."

Again referring to the encyclopedia, pages 74 and 75 under "Coin Components:

Among other things, the designer's initials are illustrated and defined as "individual components considered appropriate for their purpose and not necessarily a part of the design. Such symbols (components) are legal but not required by law."

This particular incident may not be a first for Gasperro but he did enjoy the honor of being the first mint engraver to have his initials appear on the same coin with another engraver. The 1959 Lincoln cent carries Victor D. Brenner's VDB on Page Seven the cut-off of Mr. Lincoln's coat sleeve, and Gasperro's "FG" may be found to the right of the memorial foundation just below the head.

This distinction was repeated with the issuance of the Kennedy half-dollar containing Gilroy Robert's "GR" on obverse and Gasperro's "FG" on reverse.

Gasperro is dedicated to doing more than just an acceptable job. He spent many long hours working out the details for the Lincoln and Kennedy designs.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "Myopia, or near-sightedness, is a common ailment of bridge players. They look at just one suit rather than at the whole hand."

Jim: "There are times when one suit is all you have to consider, but on many more occasions all suits are important."

Oswald: "A heart opening followed by a diamond return and a shift to a club would defeat the four spade contract. However, most West players in the duplicate game opened the deuce of clubs. The South players who only looked at one suit played the dummy's king. East would take his ace and put his partner back in with a second club whereupon a heart shift would be just about automatic and South would be set."

Jim: "The better players considered going up with the king. It was possible that West had underlined an ace. Possible, but highly improbable. Then they saw that the play of the six of clubs could guarantee their contract so they proceeded to make the insurance play."

Now available through this newspaper: "Win at Bridge with JACOBY MODERN." America's top experts explain their tournament-winning techniques in this 128-page book. For your copy send name, address, zip code and $1 to: "Win at Bridge," (c/o this newspaper), P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Oswald: "After that start the best defense could do was to gather in two clubs and the ace of diamonds."

Jim: "It was just a matter of considering all the suits. South could see that he would not have lost a heart trick, provided he got a chance to knock out the ace of diamonds before West could lead a heart. The low club play made this a sure thing."

WORLD ALMANAC

FACTS

The Panama Canal began operation in 1914 as a vital factor in world commerce. The World Almanac notes that during the seven-year period of its construction 240 million cubic yards of earth were excavated at a cost of about $336 millions. Colonel George Goethals, the project's chief engineer, directed a labor force of about 40,000 men.

'Chief' George Watchetaker, Rainmaker

ELGIN, Okla. — (NEA) — When George Watchetaker stands up to make rain, everybody laughs. Dressed in Comanche Indian tradition, his face streaked with colored paint, he starts moving around on the steaming black-top like he has a burr in his britches. Up, down, this way and that. He shouts, sings, mumbles and groans. And as a windup he spits to the north, south, east and west.

Then he stops. Giggles, giggles. And then, by God, no fooling, it rains.

In a nation which has suffered an uncommon amount of dry weather lately (22 states are having either moderate or severe drought), George Watchetaker is as absurd but nonetheless as welcome as a Nor'easter out of Oklahoma. Full-blooded Comanche, and looking every drop of it, he has been called on twice this spring to make rain—and done it, for all to see and wetness, both times.

In Wichita Falls, Tex., at the invite of the local newspaper, he brought moisture to one of the driest cities in the nation. And hardly had observers (and dumbfounded meteorologists) gotten over that than he traveled to a South Florida shopping center where, billed as Chief-Rain-in-the-Face, the phenomenon prevailed again.

"You should have seen their faces in Florida," Watchetaker (pro-Wa-che-gukey) says, rubbing his hands, "None of them believed I could do it. That's the way some people are. They have no faith. Then I did my ritual. And I stepped back. 'George' they shouted, 'where's the rain?' Then there was a plop . . . plop . . . plop, plop, plopplopplop. Man, all the windshield wipers got going, and the

PERSONAL FINANCE

By CARLTON SMITH

A surgeon of our acquaintance, with an income larger than most corporation presidents, discovered camping three years ago. His family has taken a camping vacation every summer since. A couple of weeks in the open, getting away from it all, leaves him more relaxed and refreshed, he says, than the more strenuous resort life of Mexico, Hawaii or the Cote d'Azur.

So the low cost of camping vacations is not their only appeal. It is true, though, that when the economy turns down, the number of campers takes an upturn—not very surprising when you consider that a motel-and-restaurant vacation costs about three times as much as an equivalent tent-and-trailer vacation.

Until a few years ago, camping was mostly restricted to hardy types who could adjust to shaving in cold water, or just letting the whiskers grow. The equipment available today has changed all that. Depending on your tastes and your pocketbook, you can live on a scale of amenities ranging from the comfortable to the luxurious.

Campsites have mushroomed. The 1971 edition of the Woodall directory (available at many camping supply dealers) lists more than 20,000 parks and campgrounds. Many sites now offer conveniences unheard of a few years ago. The better ones—and there are plenty of the other kind—provide such things as refrigerated lockers you can rent to keep perishables in, hot showers, laundry facilities and ice.

With today's camping equipment, hitting the trail needn't daunt the tenderfoot, or even the tender of skin. You can buy or rent, for example, tents with double-coated vinylized floors that are moisture- and insect-proof. Double roofs, and windows, temper the heat of summer suns.

A few years ago you could just about sum up a campcement got slick and shiny and everybody rushed over to me. 'George,' they said, 'how did you do it, George, how did you ever make it rain for us?'

Well, says the Indian, "actually I didn't do it, the Great Spirit did."

George Watchetaker, 55, is no fraud. He's genuine. He's no miracle worker, he doesn't know a cumulus cloud from a cactus bristle, he never promises anything, and, most emphatically, he has no uncanny powers, either real or imagined.

He says he simply knows how to pray:

"You call him God, somebody else may call him Buddha or Allah. I call him the Great Spirit. He's one in the same for us all. He's the same one who makes the trees grow and the winds blow and the rain fall. I believe in Him. I think most people do. I believe in prayer. I think most people do. So when I ask for rain I am not working any magic. I am asking for Him to help me, to help my people, to help the land and the flowers and the animals. Sometimes, when all of these things are deserving, the Great Spirit grants the prayer."

All of this, for some, may be a bit hard to swallow. But there seems no doubt George Watchetaker believes it. He is not so pious as he sounds, but he says he is devoted to certain fundamentals of religion. "You see," he says, "Indians have had their religions long as the white man

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Most Are Safe, but . . .

Dear Dr. Lamb—I never knew that a person could take an overdose of vitamin A and get vitamin A poisoning until I read a doctor's column on this. I took 5,000-unit vitamin A capsules for about three years, sometimes one or two capsules a day. Then I took 25,000-unit capsules steady for about two years. According to a doctor's column taking 25,000 units of vitamin A regularly for several months could cause vitamin A poisoning and I stopped taking them. He said the symptoms would be pains in the bones and joints, loss of appetite, falling out of the hair, all symptoms which I have. In addition to my joint pains, I have tightening of my skin and may have scleroderma. Could all of my problems be caused by taking too much vitamin A or is it the scleroderma?

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What is the real name of the American playwright, Tennessee Williams?
A—He was born Thomas Lanier Williams in Mississippi and chose Tennessee as a pen name.
Q—In astronomy, what is meant by conjunction?
A—When a planet or the moon is on the same side of the earth as the sun, it is in conjunction. At such times, the planets cannot be seen from the earth because they are in the sky at the same time as the sun.
